TURNER'S BURIAL

The Funeral Was Largely Attended This Afternoon.

MANY WORDS OF PRAISE

For the Deceased and Words of Condolence for the Bereaved Family Were Spoken—Deceased Was a Man of sterling Qualities and a True Latter-day Saint.

The funeral services over the remains of John W. Turner, deceased, held in the Provo tabernacle this afternoon were largely attended.

Bishop Keefer presided over the meeting. Upon the stand were the remains of the deceased, of his wife and members of his household. The deceased was a faithful and consistent Latter-day Saint in all his life and the funeral services over the remains were in keeping with this.

Opening prayer was offered by Elder L. John Nuttall. Elder J. S. Fuller read a biographical sketch of the life of the departed. Elder John G. Jones was the first speaker. He felt that he had lost a friend; he had been a neighbor of Brother Turner for many years and had always found him to be a wise counselor and a warm friend. The deceased while in life had often told the speaker that he had been guided by the lord in many of the difficult positions in which his official duties had placed him. The speaker knew that Brother Turner had died in full faith in the gospel and had admonished his family to remain true to its principles.

Elder Edward Stevenson first spoke of the honorable official career of Elder Turner and of his early connection with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, when it required great moral courage for a man to identify himself with that church. The speaker then spoke of the resurrection taught by the Savior and said that the deceased had been true and faithful and had secured the promise that he would rise in the first resurrection.

President A. O. Smoot was anxious to say something of the life of the deceased family; the departed needed no eulogy, he had always been an energetic and faithful man in both his religious and official life and had often consulted with the authorities of the church when he had important duties to perform, and that had been one of the reasons for his great success. Brother Smoot addressed comforting remarks to the bereaved family and admonished them to so live that they might meet their beloved husband and father in the future world.

Elder Joseph E. Taylor of the presidency of the Salt Lake stake said he had come out of respect to Brother Turner, with whom he had enjoyed an intimate acquaintance and whom he had found true and faithful in all the conditions of life in which he had been placed. As had been said by Brother Smoot, Brother Turner would come forth in the morning of the first resurrection clothed in the same tabernacle as had clothed his spirit in life, through the power of Almighty God, to restore all things. John Turner in life had faith in God and the good sense to ask the assistance of God on many occasions. The Lord God Almighty had not failed Brother Turner and to Him Brother Turner was always willing and prompt to give the praise. Brother Turner had honored God through life and had lived an honorable and exemplary life always; he would be honored by the Creator.

The Boshard and Pyne Brothers' quartette rendered very feelingly "The Vacant Chair," after which Elder J. E. Booth read a passage of Scripture wherein it is promised that they who shall rise in the morning of the first resurrection shall be blessed, and testified to the deceased's integrity by specifying many acts and incidents in the life of Brother Turner with which Brother Booth was familiar.

President David John spoke kindly and feelingly relating how the deceased had lived and died in strong faith and had among his last acts pleaded with his family to remain and be faithful always to the principles of the gospel. The speaker felt that he knew that, to Brother Turner, before death, the veil was opened and that he spoke to his brothers, sons and others who had gone before, and knew full well where he was going, so that to him death is a mighty gain.

Elder L. John Nuttall bore testimony to the truth of all that had been said, reviewed some of the history of the departed and said to Sister Turner that she had been a great stay to her husband and helped in many, many ways to his success. For this she would be blessed; she would remain faithful and meet and live with him again in happiness in the life to come.

After singing by the choir and viewing the remains by those of the vast audience who so desired, the remains were escorted to the burying grounds, scores of vehicles following.

No set wooden rule governs the dress-maker in the exact shaping and adjusting of her pattern skirts, for they are individualized for each wearer quite as much as an individual style of dressing the hair is followed.

SECRETARY CARLISLE EXPLAINS His Stand on the Redemption of Notes in Gold—The Butte Casualty—Foreign Flashes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—An important meeting of the house appropriation committee was held today, in which Secretary Carlisle took part, at the request of Chairman Sykes. The conference was over the adoption of a policy by which the secretary hopes to put into circulation an increased volume of silver certificates in small denominations in place of treasury notes. The committee decided to strike from the sundry civil bill the stipulation that for several years sums have been added to the item providing for the printing of treasury notes to replace those received at the treasury.

Secretary Carlisle stated that it was his desire to get more silver certificates of small denominations into the hands of the people, but explained that other notes occupied the field, and crowded them out. Several members of the committee led the discussion from the question into the by ways of finance. Once Representative Sibley asked the secretary what objection there would be to a system of redeeming notes in gold and silver at the option of the secretary of the treasury instead of the holder.

"If the policy had been inaugurated at the beginning of redemption," answered the secretary, "it would have worked beneficially, and no trouble would have risen from it. But my predecessors have followed the policy of redeeming in gold or silver at the option of the holder of paper, and any secretary who tried to change this policy and force silver on a man who wanted gold, or vice versa, especially at such a critical period as we have been passing through, would have precipitated disastrous results."

TWO MORE DEATHS

BUTTE, Mont., Jan. 21.—Charles Alston and Modesto Grosser died today from injuries received at last Tuesday's explosion, making a total of 68 victims. The coroner's inquest was commenced this afternoon, but only a few witnesses have been examined. The owners of the burned warehouses denied all responsibility or knowledge of powder stored in the building, and were inclined to throw the blame on their warehouse men. Several secret societies, the Knights of Labor, the city and the state are represented by attorneys who are laying foundations for damage suits and criminal prosecutions against the warehouse owners.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—During the debate on the budget today, Dr. Von Bötticher, replying to Richter, in regard to the retirement of Caprivi, said there had been a complete agreement between the ex-chancellor and the emperor, and, therefore, there was no reason for the ministry to discuss the general request to resign. Von Bötticher said all reports as to lack of solidarity in the ministry were false. Herr Saler and Count Von Limburg-Stirum expressed their satisfaction at the cordial relations existing between Bismarck and Hohenzollern.

PARIS, Ky., Jan. 21.—At a boarding house last night the death of B. E. L. Williams, aged 70, occurred. His death was caused by pneumonia. After his death his clothing and effects were searched and papers were found showing that he possessed vast wealth; in fact, proved him to have been a millionaire owning a vast estate in Australia, to which he had recently fallen heir. A few days ago Mr. Williams applied at a bank in Winchester for the cashing of a check for $100, which was made payable at a bank in California. The bank officials hesitated in cashing the check on account of the ragged appearance of the applicant, but finally telegraphed to California and the officials telegraphed that Mr. Williams' check was good for any amount under $1,000,000. Thirteen dollars in money was found in his pockets.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Secretary Gresham today received two telegrams from United States Minister Denby at Peking, confirming the reports of the landing of the Japanese troops near Che Foo. The first states that Ten Chang Fu had been bombarded by three Japanese ships, and that the American missionaries had left on the Yorktown. The second, under date of January 21, states that it is reported that Ten Chang Fu, fifty miles north of Che Foo, had been bombarded by the Japanese, who had subsequently effected a landing on the Shan Tung promontory. This places the Japanese in a position between Peking on the west and the great fortress of Wei Hai Wei on the east.

HOHENLOHE'S PECULIARITIES.

The New German Chancellor Always Cooks His Own Coffee.

Prince Hohenlohe, the new chancellor of the German empire, is cast in a different physical mold from his two stalwart predecessors. He is far from being so impressive in appearance as Bismarck or Caprivi. He looks more like the headmaster of a school in a middle sized town than like a statesman. Although of a more noble lineage than either of the ex-chancellors, he looks much less like the traditional aristocrat. His early life was, however, passed amid comparatively humble surroundings, and his birth helped him little. He practiced law until 1846, and, pitted against young men of the middle classes, never distinguished himself. In the year mentioned he succeeded to the dignity of schillingfurst and took his place as a hereditary legislator in the Bavarian reichsrath.

The prince is remarkably active for a man of his age. His excellent health is attributed to the facts that he spends as much time as possible in the open air—especially in the hunting field—and cooks his own coffee. Coffee he considers the principal course of a meal, although he likes good things to eat and employs one of the best cooks in Germany. When in his palace at Strasburg, he always prepared his own coffee. Even when he travels he carries the coffee machine with him and uses it to make his favorite beverage at least three times a day.

In the course of years he has become an expert, and few cooks can equal his brew. His guests flatter him on his art, as a matter of course, and there is no better way to reach his heart than by eulogy of his coffee.

Like many other men who have accomplished considerable in this life and love praise and their hobbies, he would rather hear praise for his "drink which comforteth the brain and heart"—to use the language of Bacon—than for his political wisdom.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

A "DON'T" FOR BRUSH BOYS.

The Tailor Tells How the Coat Collar is Quickly Ruined.

The most difficult thing to fit on a man is a coat collar, and it is the easiest thing to get out of shape, except perhaps the knees of the trousers. A tailor molds and shapes a collar with his hands and hot gose to conform with the measurements he has taken of the shape of an individual's shoulders, and it does not take a great deal of ill usage to destroy his work.

"The worst enemy a coat collar has," says the tailor, "is the colored boy who brushes your clothes in the barber shop, hotel or sleeping car. When he helps you on with your overcoat, he reaches under for your coatcollar, grasps the overcoat collar with the other hand and gives your undercoat two or three smart jerks, which pulls the collar down and away from the neck and bunches it on the shoulders, and the overcoat finishes the work of destroying its shape. This should never be allowed under any consideration."

"The proper way to keep the coat collar in place is to shrug your shoulders forward after you have put the coat on. The collar will then fall into place on your neck; the cloth will adjust itself to the shape of your shoulders and stay there. Don't pull the collar about, and don't, above all, allow the brush boy to pull your coat out of shape under the pretense of getting your overcoat on your shoulders."

Brush boys will please note.—Kansas City Star.
